Fractional coin of the usual big coins, and in such an excellent condition make the coin rare.

Estimate: ₹ 7,000-8,000

- 21 Kushanas, Kanishka I, Copper, 4.16 g, Urdhva Linga Shiva type, the king standing to left with offering in the Fire Altar near his right leg and legend around on obverse. Lord Shiva standing with a single head and holding a trident in his right hand, his left hand is hanging by the waist and Greeco legend in the right field reading OSHO. Almost Extremely Fine, Extremely Rare.

The most outstanding part of the coin is the reverse with the Lord Shiva standing and having an Urdhva Linga (erect phallus called Ithyphallic Shiva), the pose is quite distinct with his out of proportion Linga shown in a more realistic pose than the unrealistic pose of the same on his gold coins. The out of proportion of the Linga is purposely made to show this characteristic feature of Lord Shiva on such a small coin which could have easily been missed by its holder. It seems that this pose of Shiva is the earliest form which was developed later into a more subtle form of Shiva Linga. A similar coin is recorded by Joe Cribb in the British Museum, London. Another coin of the same type was recently sold by the Rajgor's for Rs. 27,000. An unusual coin with a very high implication on the religious history of India.

Such moulds were handy tools of contemporary coiners whose job was to counterfeit the then current coins for financial gains. These moulds were used to produce cast copies of the coins, which otherwise were minted by die-stiking technique.
