- 325 Hindu Kashmir, Kidarites - Hunnic dynasties, Sri Tujina I (7th century AD), Base Gold, 7.21 g, Dinar. Lord Shiva as a standing male figure facing to left, with haloed head, wearing crown with two crescents and diadem ties, looped earrings with two jewels, Kushan-style knee-length overcoat (with arched hem and decorated with jewels (dots) and tied at waist with ribbons hanging from waist to figure's left and ribbons attached to left shoulder) and leggings (decorated by jewels (dots) and tied at ankle), holding trident (with crescent around the prongs) in left hand and drops offering on small altar with right hand. Inscription in upper left field to be read from edge of coin: Sri Tuysina (Tujina) on obv. Goddess Uma - Paravati, the consort of Lord Shiva is shown as a seated female figure frontal, with head turned slightly to right, wearing looped earrings, necklace of jewels (dots), bracelets and anklets, legs crossed, with right foot in front and left foot unseen, wearing dress decorated with jewels on abdomen and flowing over legs, and scarf over shoulders and around upper arms, with scarf ends extended to right and left at waist height, holding lotus with long stem in left hand resting on left foot, with the blossom above her left shoulder, and another lotus in raised right hand above her right shoulder. Throne has a bar across the front with large finials tied with ribbons, partly covered by the end of the figure's dress. Inscription in left field arranged vertically: Kidara; in right field horizontally: Jaya. This coin is related by its design (similarity to issues of Toramana) and its inscription Sri Tujina to the kings of Kashmir as described in the second and third books of Kalhana's Rajatarangini, the Kashmir Chronicle. There are two kings named Tunjina mentioned in these books. The most likely attribution for this coin is to the first of these kings (Rajatarangini II.11-56) who is said to have ruled in Kashmir for 36 year The second Tunjina was also known as Pravarasena (III.97-101) and coins attributable to this king with his name Pravarasena are known, so it is unlikely that he also issued coins with his other name. The chronology of the Rajatarangini is very confused from this period, providing dates in the first century AD according to one system or fourth century AD, according to another. A more likely date for these kings is in the 7th century, because of the mention of a king Pratapasila (III.330; related to the Indian king Harshavardhana) in association with a king ruling a few years later. The figure on the front could be identified as the king on the analogy of its Kushan prototype or as Lord Siva on account of the trident carried in his left hand. The figure on the reverse appears from the lotus motifs to be Sri, but in the Saivite context of this coin, could be a representation of Siva's consort Uma or Parvati. The design also owes as much to Gupta as to Kushan coin design. About Extremely Fine, Extremely Rare.

A similar coin of this ruler was sold by the Rajgor's Auction 3, Lot 34, for 3,51,000.

Estimate: ₹ 2,25,000-2,50,000

Lingen & Wiggins in their monumental book, Coinage of the Sindhias attribute silver Rupees similar to this coin to Jayappa Sindhia the first Sindhia 'ruler'. However, at this early date, the Sindhias were still secondary courtiers of the Peshwa and as such this coin is more appropriately attributed to the Marathas. By RY 7, Jayappa had already died and the Sindhia domains were in the hands of his son Jankoji Sindhia and brother Dattaji Sindhia. This coin was struck under Maratha rule with Jayappa Sindhia as Governor, he was a Maratha general who ruled in north India from 1745 to 1755. An interesting piece of Maratha History!

Webb in his 1893 book, the Currencies of the Hindu States of Rajputana, has listed obverse die of silver coins (Plate V, No. 8) with the same couplet as seen on the present Mohur. However, not a single silver or gold coins has ever been discovered with this couplet. All the coins catalogued so far are issued in the name of Alamgir II and not of Shah Alam II. In this light the present Nazarana Mohur reconfirms the line drawing of Webb, which he had seen in circulation, vis a vis the minting of special Nazarana Mohurs also. Great Rarity!

Jaisalmer State

- 429 Maharawal Akhay Singh (AD 1722-1762), Gold, 9.830 g, Square Nazarana Mohur (Akhey Shahi Mohur), issued in the name of the then current Mughal Emperor Muhammad Shah, Sahin Qiran type, AH 114(2), RY 12 (= AD 1731), with the mint name Shahjahanabad Dar ul Khilafat mint, mint name at top on rev, but minted at the capital, Jaisalmer Dar ul Riyasat mint. Usual elongated Sanah at bottom, which was actually a “Jaisalemeri Mark”. The under-weight coin has minor drills on the edges to dig out metal to earn from a gram of gold thus extracted. Similar examples of filing metal from the edges are quite common and have been seen on Gupta gold Dinars, Heavy Tankas of Delhi Sultanate and on Heavy Rupees of the Mughals (see Lot 456 of this auction for a similar coin). About Extremely Fine for the type, First-Known Coin, Unique!

This is the earliest known Nazarana Mohur of the State. The coin dies used in manufacturing the coin were circular but minted on square planchets. Similar unique coins in silver are also reported like a Nazarana 2-½ Rupee coin, weighing 28 g. According to Webb in his 1893 book, the Currencies of the Hindu States of Rajputana, the Akhey Shahi coins had a constant weight of 10.935 g (168.75 grains), but the actual coins show that the weight as well as the metal content was gradually reduced. In silver coins, the metal went down from 97.5% to 88%, and weight went down from 11.3 g to 10.4 g.

Great Rarity, Unique and reported first time here.

European Coins of India East India Company - Bengal Presidency

448 Robert Clive Coin, Gold, 2.90 g,  $\frac{1}{4}$  Mohur, issued between AD 1766-1768, in the name of Shah Alam II, minted from Calcutta mint with the mint name Murshidabad, Sun mint mark on obv, English letter C on rev (off flan), RY 7 (refer Pridmore# 15-16 for 1 Mohur and  $\frac{1}{2}$  Mohur; Stevens# 2.7 & 2.9).

Pridmore has recorded only 2 denominations, namely Mohur and  $\frac{1}{2}$  Mohur; Stevens on the other hand included a unique  $\frac{1}{8}$  Mohur (# 2.9, p. 89), he also could not locate a single piece of  $\frac{1}{4}$  Mohur of this type. NGS graded MS 62 Superb. Unpublished and First Known Coin, Unique.

Having a number of complaints of the scarcity of silver coinage, Lord Robert Clive introduced a gold coinage on 30th July 1766, which had Roman letter C imbibed near Julus on the rev. The conversion of the gold Mohur was fixed at 14 Sikka Rupees with the sanction of  $\frac{1}{2}$ ,  $\frac{1}{4}$ , and  $\frac{1}{8}$  Mohurs. However, this experiment of ficed Legal tender gold coins failed and they were withdrawn from circulation. Interestingly, at the time of their recall from circulation in Bengal, Madras was at war with Haider Ali of Mysore, and Madras requested aid from Bengal, including supply of money. Calcutta having this withdrawn gold in the treasury, shipped the greater part to Madras who recoined these Mohur coins into then current Star Pagodas.

Intersting stats of the gold coins are available which were sent to Madras (Pridmore, p. 201):

Total Gold Mohurs – 2,63,045 coins

Sent to Madras – 1,34,417 coins

Returned to the Treasury, Calcutta - 1,20,161 coins

Balance coins not brought in – 8,467 coins remained in circulation !

Before the East India Company standardized uniform currency throughout India in 1835, all the 3 presidencies were trying to regularize their currencies. In Bengal, the EIC tried to merge the mints at Calcutta, Farrukhabad, Banaras and Sagar in to one currency with the same style of Farrukhabad coinage and fixed RY 45, called 45 Sun Sikka. They also tried their hands in copper currency. The very first such attempt was to issue a Rupee-like copper currency of 1 Pice Coins. They did issue some Pattern coins, but on objection of mint masters and experts on the ground that such copper coins will be plated with silver and will be fooled as silver Rupee coins, the production of such Pattern coins was discontinued. These early experimental coins are survived by only a handful, not more than a dozen, of such coins now. Great Rarity.

East India Company Bombay Presidency

456 Mumbai Rupee of Aurangzeb, Silver, 9.89 g, Rupee, issued in the name of Mughal Emperor Aurangzeb, Badr Munir couplet, mint name in crude calligraphy in the last line on rev. The whole execution is crude and un-like Mughal fabric, indicating the issuer to be a non-Mughal entity. The mint name is quite crude and reading of the mint name is doubted by a few scholars as it is not what we generally find on other Mumbai coins of later rulers. However, the overall crude execution of the calligraphy leaves no doubt that the mint name has to be similarly cruder. Moreover, the curves of the mint name do suggest an imitation of the word Mumbai. Also the weight of the coin was reduced by contemporary cheats by way of scrapping of edges to get silver and reduce the weight by a gram or so, the practice is found from ancient Gupta Empire to modern Princely States (kindly refer the Square Nazarana Mohur of Jaisalmer State, Lot# 429 in this auction).

The coin seems to be issued by the East India Company when they acquired the Bombay islands and were in need of local silver currency. Since the British did not had their own currency, they tried to mint locally a few silver coins in the name of Aurangzeb with the mint name Mumbai. Consequently, in 1693, as Khafi Khan has noted, the Mughal Emperor Aurangzeb was very displeased with the issue of these coins by the East India Company in Bombay. Aurangzeb took a strong exception to this minting. Consequently, the East India Company had to stop the minting and most of the minted coins were withdrawn and melted down. Quite later, during the time of Farrukhsiyar, the British got the Royal permission to mint coins in the name of Mughal Emperor and with the mint name Mumbai.
