Ancient Coins (600 BC to AD 700)

1 ₹ 1,200

Primitive Money (c. 200-100 BC), Swastika money, Gold, 0.19 g, 14 x 15 mm, a squarish clock-wise Swastika made from gold strings and joined at the centre to form the perfect shape of Swastika. Unusual shape to be found with coins, Extremely Fine+, Rare.

The Gold Swastika was fished out from the right bank of the historical river Kshipra, near Mahakaal Temple at Ujjain in Madhya Pradesh in early 1990s. Other finds along with the Swastika were copper punch-marked coins of Malwa Province and copper die-struck coins of Ujjayini, belonging to the period of c. 200-100 BC. This fact is important in dating this gold object and placing it in its proper historical time-frame. Such pieces of gold were often used as a replacement of coins for big business transactions, because the primary currency of that period was made of copper, which was not sufficient to handle large business deals.

₹ 3,00,000

Hindu Kashmir, Kidarites - Hunnic dynasties, Sri Tujina I (7th century AD), Base Gold, 7.37 g, Dinar.

Mr. Joe Cribb, Keeper (Retd), Dept of Coins and Medals, the British Museum, London, UK, has kindly deciphered the present Unique coin with his mastery over the coinage of Kashmir region:

This coin is related by its design (similarity to issues of Toramana) and its inscription Sri Tujina to the kings of Kashmir as described in the second and third books of Kalhana's Rajatarangini, the Kashmir Chronicle. There are two kings named Tunjina mentioned in these books. The most likely attribution for this coin is to the first of these kings (Rajatarangini II.11-56) who is said to have ruled in Kashmir for 36 year The second Tunjina was also known as Pravarasena (III.97-101) and coins attributable to this king with his name Pravarasena are known, so it is unlikely that he also issued coins with his other name.

The chronology of the Rajatarangini is very confused from this period, providing dates in the first century AD according to one system or fourth century AD, according to another. A more likely date for these kings is in the 7th century, because of the mention of a king Pratapasila (III.330; related to the Indian king Harshavardhana) in association with a king ruling a few years later.

The figure on the front could be identified as the king on the analogy of its Kushan prototype or as Lord Śiva on account of the trident carried in his left hand. The figure on the reverse appears from the lotus motifs to be Śri, but in the Saivite context of this coin, could be a representation of Śiva's consort Uma or Parvati. The design also owes as much to Gupta as to Kushan coin design.

Ranjit Singh (AD 1780-1839) with Governor Hari Singh Nalwa (AD 1820-1821), Silver, Rupee, Kashmir Mint, Har in Gurumukhi, Gobindshahi couplet, VS 1878 (1821) (Herrli 06.05.04). Die-cracks, Very Fine+, Extremely Rare.

The famous General Hari Singh Nalwa was appointed the Governor of Kashmir in 1820. He was an efficient but rapacious and therefore highly unpopular Governor. He governed the province for a little over a year. Some Rupees struck under him, in VS 1878-1879 in Kashmir bear the word Har in Gurumukhi script. It is evident that the word Har, which primarily means: God on the Rupees of Hari Singh must be understood as oblique reference to the Nazim's name, but the very fact the name appear in a religious disguise seems to prove that the Governor acted without Ranjit Singh's express permission.

The Gandhi Proof Sets are one of the earliest Proof Sets of Republic of India to be issued to public.
